Rivers and Tides is a an entrancing and beautifully photographed film about Andy Goldsworthy, one of Britain's best known sculptors, renowned worldwide for his work with entirely natural materials such as ice, stone, leaves and wood.

Shot in four countries across four seasons, the film provides a fascinating insight into Goldsworthy's painstaking creative process and captures the elusive quality of his intricate and often ephemeral works, which are threatened and sometimes destroyed by nature and the passing of time.

We see how several (works) fall apart, melt, or drift away due to exposure to the elements; we also see, for example, a complex structure of interconnected sticks collapse while Goldsworthy is still working on it.

Riedelsheimer takes us to Goldsworthy's home in Penport, Scotland, and to a French museum, but the emphasis of the film is on observing Goldsworthy at work.

That rare film about an artist that is, in itself, a work of art, Rivers and Tides Andy Goldsworthy Working With Time is an extraordinary journey into the world and mind of Scottish sculptor Andy Goldsworthy.

A land-artist who (with no other tool than his hands) uses materials from nature to make site-specific works, Goldsworthy allows the elements to have the last say in his beautiful creations, as his ingenious patterns of wood, leaves, stone and ice move and erode over time. German filmmaker Thomas Riedelsheimer followed the artist for over a year in several outdoor locations, intimately documenting his improvisational process and capturing the serene spectacle of his works and their delicate changes.

Although Goldsworthy's private and often ephemeral pieces have been documented extensively in still photographs, this remarkable movie uses the artist's own voice to guide us through his process and help us "...see something you never saw before, that was always there but you were blind to it." Rivers and Tides is a sensual and poetic masterpiece. - Richard Peterson

Rivers and Tides heeft voor een vorm van faam gezorgd die Goldsworthy zelf maar moeilijk voor elkaar had kunnen krijgen. Zijn veelal vluchtige praktijk leent zich dan ook extreem goed voor het medium film.

Na het succesvolle Rivers and Tides brengt documentairemaker Thomas Riedelsheimer nog een keer landschapskunstenaar Andy Goldsworthy in beeld in een nieuwe documentaire:

LEANING INTO THE WIND - OFFICIAL TRAILER

Magnolia Pictures & Magnet Releasing

Sixteen years after the release of the groundbreaking film Rivers and Tides – Andy Goldsworthy Working with Time director Thomas Riedelsheimer has returned to work with the artist. Leaning into the Wind – Andy Goldsworthy follows Andy on his exploration of the layers of his world and the impact of the years on himself and his art. As Goldsworthy introduces his own body into the work it becomes at the same time even more fragile and personal and also sterner and tougher, incorporating massive machinery and crews on his bigger projects. Riedelsheimer's exquisite film illuminates Goldsworthy's mind as it reveals his art.

ANDY GOLDSWORTHY – 'WE SHARE A CONNECTION WITH STONE' | TATESHOTS

Tate

Using materials such as wood, stone and snow, Andy Goldsworthy's Land Art explores our connection with nature. TateShots visited him at his studio in southwest Scotland and took a walk with him through the landscape that is at the heart of his work.

Land art is art that is made directly in the landscape, sculpting the land itself into earthworks or making structures in the landscape using natural materials such as rocks or twigs. Land art is usually documented in artworks using photographs and maps which the artist could exhibit in a gallery. Land artists also made land art in the gallery by bringing in material from the landscape and using it to create installations.

WHY SCULPTOR ANDY GOLDSWORTHY IS TEARING DOWN WALLS -- AND THEN REBUILDING THEM

PBS NewsHour

British sculptor Andy Goldsworthy has long been known for his unconventional approach to art. In an ongoing project at Kansas City's Nelson-Atkins Museum of Art, Goldsworthy has created a "walking wall," assembling and then disassembling the same limestone rocks, moving across the landscape of the museum's campus. Jeffrey Brown talks to Goldsworthy about creating objects that won't last forever.

ANDY GOLDSWORTHY - STRANGLER CAIRN - CONONDALE RANGES

Arts Queensland

British artist Andy Goldsworthy was commissioned by the Department of Environment and Resource Management, Queensland Parks and Wildlife Division to create Strangler Cairn for the Conondale Range Great Walk. Goldsworthy is noted for his sensitive response to the environment, which made him a perfect choice for working in the national park. Strangler Cairn is made from granite and slate sourced from a local quarry. It is also planted with a small strangler fig -- Ficus watkinsiana -- which, over time will grow and 'strangle' the cairn. ANDY GOLDSWORTHY'S EARTH WALL

presidiosf

Andy Goldsworthy is one of the world's most talented site-specific artists. The Presidio Trust is honored to host the largest collection of the artist's works on public view in North America. The installations include Spire, Wood Line, Tree Fall, and now his latest, located within the Presidio Officers' Club – Earth Wall.

Earth Wall pays homage to the rich archaeological setting of the Presidio Officers' Club. It was built with materials taken from the site—earth from the Officers' Club rehabilitation and eucalyptus branches from the Presidio forest. It is located behind the Hardie Courtyard.

ANDY GOLDSWORTHY STRIDING ARCHES - NITHSDALE - WILD CAMP MARCH 2016

The Striding Arches are a series of three massive stone sandstone arches built on the hilltops around Cairnhead, near Moniaive. Built by renowned sculptor Andy Goldsworthy, the arches are complemented by another springing from an old byre at the foot of the valley.

Thursday 24nd March we wildcamped under the arch on Benbrack, it was a memorable camp, we awoke on Good Friday to a lovely morning which just improved as the day went on. #garnforaratch #WildCamping

TWO AUTUMNS: ANDY GOLDSWORTHY

Witness outdoor artist Andy Goldsworthy at work around Penpont, Dumfriesshire, as he explores the land with his hands.

Documentary 1992 52 mins

Enter the natural world of outdoor artist Andy Goldsworthy and be mesmerised by his ephemeral creations. This captivating film was shot in Penpont, the small village in Dumfriesshire where Goldsworthy lives, and in the rural Japanese community of Ouchiyama.

"I have a deep need to understand the land with my hands", says Goldsworthy of his work. As well as offering insight into the artist's practices, this well-crafted film sponsored by the Arts Council provides a means of documenting the transient pieces he creates.
